ADVOCACY PROGRAM

WEI's core program advances human rights at the intersection of gender and disability through a three-pronged strategy:

1. Norm Building and Thought Leadership

WEI uses legal and advocacy strategies to engage with U.N. agencies, treaty bodies, and experts, as well as with regional human rights mechanisms by submitting country-specific shadow letters, comments on proposed General Comments/Recommendations, and other reports to advance the human rights of women and girls with disabilities. Increasingly, WEI collaborates with local partners in its advocacy work to better reflect the voices of disabled women into policy spaces where they have too often been marginalized or missing

In 2020, much of the work of human rights systems was disrupted due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Yet, WEI continued to engage with human rights mechanisms wherever possible, and also focused on deepening relationships with Special Rapporteurs and other human rights experts and working groups, offering and responding to requests for information and analysis, and taking a seat at tables of influence.

Some examples of the issues and UN advocacy activities WEI engaged in include:

- Trafficking in Women and Girls in the Context of Global Migration, advocating to the Committee to End Discrimination Against Women.
- COVID-19 and Human Rights, responding to the U.N. Special Procedures Questionnaire to inform the global human rights response to the pandemic.
- Gender-based Violence and COVID-19 at the Intersection of Gender and Disability, reporting to the U.N.

Special Rapporteur on Violence against Women.

· Sexual and reproductive health and rights in situations of crisis, jointly advocating with our regional partners to the Working Group on discrimination against women and girls.

WEI demonstrated thought leadership - and extraordinary agility to meet the moment - in our organizational response to the COVID-19 pandemic. When COVID-19 struck, WEI responded immediately by issuing a global survey to understand how the pandemic was impacting rights at the intersection of gender and disability. Launched in May 2020, WEI's survey results have helped inform global response. Partnering with women with disability-led organizations from around the world, WEI then coordinated 20 virtual consultations and written surveys that reached more than 300 respondents to document their lived experiences during COVID-19 and produce a suite of resources to inform crisis response by governments, U.N. agencies, public health experts. These resources address critical issues - from preventing gender-based violence, to accessing sexual and reproductive healthcare, to meeting basic needs for employment, education, and essential services.

2. Capacity Development

WEI expands the capacity of individuals and entities working on gender and/or disability to approach these issues with a strong human rights foundation and an intersectional lens, concentrating in particular on providing tools, training, and opportunities for collective action to women and girls with disabilities so that they can effectively advocate for their rights.

At WEI's South and South East Asia Regional Convening in January 2020, 22 feminists with disabilities from 10 countries gathered in Bangkok, Thailand to deepen working relationships across the region, share knowledge, and hone international human rights advocacy skills. The group identified priorities for collective action including to: 1) engage in international women's rights forums to ensure inclusion of disabled feminists; 2) strengthen the regional network of feminists with disabilities and allies; and 3) inform debates concerning abortion, pre-natal testing and disability.

In partnership with the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) Pacific Sub-Regional Office, WEI is implementing a multi-year project aimed at transforming access to and inclusiveness of gender-based violence and sexual and reproductive health services across six Pacific Island countries: Fiji, Kiribati, Samoa, Solomon Islands, Tonga, and Vanuatu. WEI's research identified the primary barriers to essential services -including family planning, comprehensive sexuality education, skilled attendance at birth, integration of health services for victims of violence, among others-for women and young people with disabilities.

WEI completed a series of six trainings that reached a total of 370 stakeholders from 76 countries, in partnership with UN Population Fund (UNFPA) global regions: Eastern and Southern Africa; Western and Central Africa; Eastern Europe and Central Asia; the Pacific Sub-Region; North Africa and the Arab States; and Asia. Workshops centered on WEI/UNFPA co-authored Guidelines that provide practical and concrete guidance service providers, governments and civil society actors involved in developing, implementing, advocating for and monitoring gender-based violence prevention or sexual and reproductive health services for women and young persons with disabilities. Country delegations developed action plans to bring back to their communities.

3. Movement and Cross-Movement Building

WEI leverages its skills, experience, and network to organize and promote social movements led by women and girls with disabilities; WEI supports the development of intersectional social movements that include disabled women and advocate for and defend their rights by building inclusive coalitions and creating safe spaces for disabled women and allies.

Selected in 2020 as a civil society leader on the Generation Equality Forum (GEF) Feminist Movements & Leadership Action Coalition, WEI began leveraging its role to influence the Beijing+25 process to ensure that its outcomes reflect priorities for feminists with disabilities worldwide. We conducted outreach and planned events to organize an inclusive collective of feminists with disabilities and organizations advocating at the intersection of gender and disability to develop an inclusive advocacy platform aimed at States, intergovernmental bodies, U.N. agencies, and other civil society organizations engaged in the GEF process in 2021 and beyond.

On WEI's website and blog and through our social media channels and e-news alerts, we inform, connect, and mobilize individuals and organizations around the world who are committed to advancing the rights of disabled, women, girls and other individuals with marginalized gender identities. Our Interactive Global Map substantiates the scope and depth of the growing global field of disabled women's rights organizations and advocates and also serves as a powerful organizing tool to share strategies within and across movements.

INTERN PROGRAM

Women Enabled International operates a dynamic legal internship and fellowship program to train the next generation of human rights lawyers and advocates championing the rights of people living at the intersection of gender and disability worldwide. Legal interns and fellows obtain experience in international research, writing and engagement with international and regional human rights mechanisms while being supervised and mentored by our legal team of experienced human rights lawyers. They also are afforded opportunities to participate in relevant meetings and other activities with like-minded students and professionals at organizations in the Washington, DC, New York City and abroad.
